A BIBLIOGRAPHY OF PRINTED DOCUMENTS AND BOOKS RELATING TO THE SCOTTISH COMPANY,
COMMONLY CALLED THE DARIEN COMPANY.¹

By JOHN SCOTT, C.B.

BY the death of Mr Scott, which occurred on May 19th, 1903, the Society has lost one of its most active, enthusiastic, and loyal members. He was one of the original members of the Society, and from the very beginning showed that great interest in its progress and welfare which he maintained to the last. When, in 1896, he was elected President, he not only highly appreciated the compliment, but felt that the position entailed on him the duty of further effort. Evidence of this interest is shown in the many contributions, besides the present one, which he made to the Proceedings. His paper on Jordanus Nemorarius was among the first printed ; his Queen Mary Bibliography forms the second volume of the Publications ; and at the last meeting which he attended he gave an account of the earliest known map of Scotland, and a reproduction of this and of several other early maps, for presentation to the members, was one of his unfulfilled purposes. He was deeply concerned in the progress of Mr Aldis's List of Books Printed in Scotland before 1700, and to his encouragement is largely due the fact that it is now being printed. He eagerly looked for its appearance, and, indeed, his last request to the Secretary was for an early proof of the first pages. His kindness in affording help from the resources of his splendid library to workers on special lines is well known, and he highly appreciated the slightest help given to himself. To only a few—to none in such degree as to the writer of this notice—is known the extent of his devotion to the interests of the Society, and of his sympathy with the work it has set itself to do.

Of his work in connection with other societies this is not the place to speak, but a reference may be made to Father Pollen's graceful tribute to Mr Scott in the preface to Vol. XLIII. of the Publications of the Scottish History Society.

Mr Scott's character was many-sided and his interests many and varied, but to those who knew him best on the studious or literary side, it is difficult to dissociate the thought of him from his library. There he seemed to be most at home. Those who have been privileged to spend an evening hour or two with him among his books have experienced a pleasure they would not willingly forget. Books were not a hobby with him, they were a passion : a passion well regulated, for hardly a book on the shelves but had a reason for its place there. He had collected books from his boyhood, but he was not the mere "collector" or bibliomaniac. He read and studied his books, and knew them every one. They were means to an end ; but he loved the means. His thoroughness was shown in this as in other matters. Once he took up a subject he aimed at making the collection of works relating to it complete. And the composition of the library reflected the man in a remarkable degree. The bent of his mind was historical, and to describe his library in one word would be to call it historical. He was an ardent student of Scottish history, and, therefore, by far the larger part of the library is devoted to Scotland ; but there are other sections, and in all of them the historical aspect predominates : that is, the history of each subject is illustrated by the collection of books bearing upon it.

Mr Scott was a shipbuilder, and therefore made a collection of every book on marine architecture and engineering and cognate subjects it was possible to get. He was a yachtsman, and a collection of works on navigation and seamanship was made. These form a naval section which contains many books of extreme rarity,¹ and is said to be the finest collection of its kind known. He was a man of science, and works on early science, particularly books of inventions and books of numbers,² greatly attracted him. The collection of these is very full, and contains many rare and fine works, notably a series of first editions in various languages of Bartholomæus De proprietatibus rerum, and two beautiful early manuscript copies of it. He was a colonel of artillery in the Volunteer force, and a case is found devoted to rare military books, and in particular to treatises on gunnery, artillery, and fencing. He was a native of Greenock, and another case is filled with books and tracts relating to that town. His home was in Ayrshire, so all the books concerning the county were collected. As a bibliographer and book lover the history of books appealed to him, shown in one direction by the Incunabula and early English books, comprising about three hundred examples illustrative of the genesis of the printed book, and in another by the splendid collection in Bibliography recording its progress and general history. Apart from well defined sections there may be noted in brief some fine manuscripts, the early chronicles, Hakluyt, Purchas, and many a book, blackletter or other, which every bibliophile would have if he could. There is also a copy of the first folio Shakespeare not recorded in Mr Sidney Lee's Census of Extant Copies.

But the outstanding importance of the library consists in the collection of Scottish Books and Manuscripts, and within its limits there are probably few to compare with it as a whole, while certain sections are unique in their completeness. The famous Queen Mary collection is by far the finest in any library, and almost the same may be said of books of the Reformation period. Of the works of John Knox and his antagonists, Tyrie and others; and of Alesius, and other contemporary writers, there is probably nearly every book known, rare as they are. The whole course of Scottish history down to 1745 is very fully represented, particular episodes being marked by special collections, such as those relating to the Darien Scheme, the Union, and the Jacobite Risings of 1715 and 1745. Other features of note are, a perfect copy of Bellenden's translation of Boece, printed on paper; the Fletcher of Saltoun collection formed by Mr Scott Macfie¹; a fine series of Family Histories, including the only known copy of the earliest edition of Hume of Godscroft's History²; and sets of the publications of all the Printing Clubs and Societies, many with extra volumes.

The Manuscripts number over two hundred and are chiefly historical. Many are of very great interest and importance, and several have been made use of in the publications of the Scottish History and Scottish Text Societies, the last being the recently issued facsimile of a letter of Mary Queen of Scots, edited by Father Pollen.

The library is peculiar in two respects. It may be said to have no modern side. Recent books there are in plenty, but nearly all relate to the past. Also the literature generally included under the heading of belles lettres is scarcely represented. One weakness Mr Scott owned to, namely, a penchant for books printed on vellum, of which there are a good many volumes, but he was not carried away by it. And the presence of a considerable number of duplicates does not indicate a craze in that direction, but the desire for completeness. Thus, though there may be several copies of the same book, they are, generally speaking, found in different sections.

That the collection formed by Mr Scott with such knowledge and enthusiasm should be dispersed and thus, as a whole, lost to Scotland, is a matter of deep regret to all who are interested in historical research, and the loss will, in a special manner, be felt by this Society, which has had such practical experience of the value of the library in providing material for the special work to which it is devoted.

The following bibliography was intended to have been printed with an introduction in the Session of 1899-1900. The historical sketch and notes which Mr Scott read to the meeting when he exhibited his collection of Darien literature in 1899, he purposed extending and completing in a form for printing. These were, unfortunately, mislaid, and a delay was occasioned while search was being made for them. When hope of recovering them was given up, he resolved upon making fresh notes and rewriting the introduction, but his many engagements and other causes interfered with the carrying out of this intention, and his illness and lamented death prevented its accomplishment. The bibliography is therefore printed without the introduction, which, from Mr Scott's grasp of the subject and intimate knowledge of the details of this episode in Scottish history, would have proved an interesting and illuminating guide to its literature.

It was understood to have been in other respects left in a practically complete state, and on application to Mr Scott's family it was handed to the Secretary for publication. It then consisted of 111 titles, and was typewritten; but owing to the copyist's want of familiarity with the nature of the work, and in the absence of Mr Scott's revision, many serious errors had crept in, and it was found necessary to revise the whole and to compare the titles with the originals at Halkhill. In the course of doing so, several other items were discovered and added. Additions have also been made from other sources, particularly the collection of the Earl of Rosebery and a volume of seventeen Darien tracts and broadsides belonging to J. J. Spencer, Esq., Glasgow; and I have to express my indebtedness to Lord Rosebery and Mr Spencer for their kindness in allowing me the use of these. It has been judged advisable to include also the titles of printed documents given in the Full and Exact Collection (see no. 122), since many of these are not known as separate publications. A number of the tracts were not found, being probably bound in volumes with others. The descriptions of most of these have been compared with copies in other libraries, but numbers 37, 48, 50, and 173 have not been revised.

The titles were originally arranged chronologically in four classes, namely:—

- I. Books, Acts of Parliament, Proclamations, etc., relating to the Company and Darien.
- II. Minutes of the Court of Directors and other printed documents issued by the Company.
- III. Poems and metrical broadsides, etc.
- IV. Books, etc., relating to the episode of the ship Worcester and the case of Captain Green.

This arrangement has been altered, but each entry is marked with the number of the class to which Mr Scott assigned it. The additions have also been marked as nearly as possible in conformity with the classification. Copies in Mr Scott's collection are indicated by an S.

Any lists of Darien literature which exist are very incomplete. The Collection (no. 122) reprints official documents and gives titles of 14 tracts. A list of 29 titles is given in Dr Hill Burton's History of Scotland; and the others have to be sought for in the catalogues of public libraries, chiefly the British Museum and the Advocates. The Darien Papers, edited by Dr Hill Burton for the Bannatyne Club, is a collection of manuscripts of which, of course, no account is taken here.

A BIBLIOGRAPHY OF PRINTED DOCUMENTS AND BOOKS
RELATING TO THE DARIEN COMPANY

DARIEN BIBLIOGRAPHY:

ADDITIONS AND CORRECTIONS¹

By GEORGE P. JOHNSTON.

THE extent of this supplemental list is largely due to the kindness of Mr Hiram Bingham, Curator of South American History and Literature, Harvard University, and of Mr J. J. Spencer, Glasgow.

Shortly after the first part of this volume had been issued, Mr Bingham, who was in Edinburgh going over the Darien Papers in the Advocates Library for the purposes of a historical study of the Darien episode on which he is engaged, told me that the collection included a number of printed documents, of which he had taken notes. On his return to America he sent me a copy of his notes, and also supplied particulars of several broadsides and tracts not given in the Bibliography, which are to be found in the John Carter Brown Library at Providence, Rhode Island, and in the Library of Congress at Washington.

Mr Spencer compared the Bibliography with the list of his own collection, and sent me notes of some titles not included in the former. He also allowed me the use of a list of Darien literature, compiled for himself from Sabin's *Bibliotheca Americana*², Winsor's *History of America*³, and other sources, which has been of the greatest service.

Several undescribed broadsides were discovered in a collection of tracts sold in London in 1904, and later on, Mr Scott's library, when laid out for sale, yielded on further examination some additional titles. Before his collection was dispersed, occasion was taken to revise and amend a number of the original entries. For titles of two broadsides discovered in the Watson Collection (now in Edinburgh Public Library) I am indebted to Mr Cowan.

I have to thank several correspondents for notes of titles which do not appear here, and to explain why they are omitted. The contemporary tracts, like most of the Scottish political tracts of the period, certainly refer to the Darien matter, but do little more than mention it. To include any for this reason would mean extending the list indefinitely and to little purpose. Of more modern publications only those which are considered to have some special value or, like Mr Bingham's articles, add to the knowledge of the subject and throw fresh light upon it, are included. The titles of two works formerly rejected are on reconsideration and without apology now included: both Sir Walter Scott's account of the episode and Eliot Warburton's romance ought to have a place in a Darien Bibliography.

² A Dictionary of Books relating to America, from its discovery to the present time. By Joseph Sabin. New York, 1868, etc. 19 vols. 4°. In progress.

³ Narrative and Critical History of America. By Justin Winsor. London and Cambridge, Mass. 1889-86-89. 8 vols. 8°.

This list contains sixty-four additional titles, besides amended and corrected entries. The method of numbering them is considered the most suitable for maintaining the chronological sequence.

A large proportion of the Darien lots in the sale of Mr Scott's library were secured for the John Carter Brown Library, which now has probably the best collection on the subject; and in the case of tracts of which only one copy is known to exist, the change of ownership is indicated by 'J. C. B. Lib.' after the numbers.

In acknowledging my indebtedness to Mr Bingham and Mr Spencer, I have to thank them for the kind and cordial manner in which their help was given. Mr Aldis has kindly revised the entries in Sabin's Dictionary.
